

dear sir, while other countries have developed wireless technologies in delivering broadband technology, we are still looking at traditional landlines for this effort. Net result is that USA lags behind in internet access and is increasingly going for anti competitive rules in telecom industry that would restrict wireless technologies. While it is good to give broadband over traditional phone network, the service shouldn't be monopolised by local phone companies.